and CFO,
Autonomous
Systems
Boeing Defense,
Space and Security

Troy Lahr is vice president and CFO of Autonomous Systems, a division within Boeing Defense, Space and Security that focuses on autonomous technologies, intelligence capabilities and networking solutions from seabed to space. Lahr has responsibilities for all finance-related activities for the Autonomous Systems business along with its subsidiaries and is also on the Board of Directors for United Launch Alliance, a joint venture with Boeing and Lockheed Martin.

Prior to the current role, he led investor relations for Boeing, working with institutional investors and securities analysts to promote understanding of Boeing's programs, financial performance and outlook. In 2012, Lahr joined Boeing in the Business Development group at Boeing Defense, Space & Security.

Before joining Boeing, he worked for more than a decade at Stifel Financial, where he held the position of Managing Director, with the lead role in covering the aerospace and defense sector. Recognition for Lahr's leadership in equity research included Best on the Street Master Stock Picker by the Wall Street Journal for Aerospace and Defense, and Forbes and Starmine Top Aerospace and Defense Analyst.

Lahr possesses a Masters of Science in Finance from Loyola University, Maryland and a Bachelors degree from the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.
